Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

On 23 June 2016, Britain voted to leave the EU, and the Brexit negotiations between the UK and the EU are currently ongoing.

Participants in the global financial markets are facing great uncertainty about what impact Brexit will have on the European financial system and particularly, the UK financial services sector and its capital markets.

Overall, there are uncertainties surrounding what the new relationship between the UK and the EU will look like after Brexit.

Brexit not only challenges practitioners, but also brings about many academic questions. This Special Issue will provide a good opportunity for researchers in financial economics to examine questions related to the above-mentioned areas. Studies on other subtopics that are relevant to Brexit and its impact on financial systems will also be considered.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I'm thrilled to take the leadership reins of the International Journal of Financial Studies and welcome the opportunity to make it one of the vanguard open-source scientific journals in our field. I eagerly look forward to working with the journal editorial team in building upon the quality instilled by my predecessor to develop the title further and broaden the appeal to other new finance research areas while keeping our core a high-quality finance journal that serves and highly values the scientific community, readers and authors alike. IJFS aims to publish high-quality manuscripts in both theoretical and empirical finance spanning all the major research areas in the field. It aims to provide an outlet for original finance scholarly research that promotes interaction among finance scholars and practitioners and bridges the divide that can exist between them.
