Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue discusses the molecular mechanism of genome evolution, geo-epidemiology, and clinical correlates of SARS-CoV-2 variants, and how such variants impact on both the natural and vaccine-elicited immune response. We would like to publish original research articles and review articles of big data gathering in vitro evidence of efficacy. Since IJMS is a journal of molecular science, pure clinical studies will not be suitable for our journal. Instead, clinical submissions with biomolecular experiments are welcomed. Studies can be focused not only on variants of concern, but also on variants of interest. Description of software and other analysis tools is also encouraged.

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
