Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

New technologies and devices are proposed every day in the field of diagnostic and therapeutic digestive endoscopy. In the former, artificial intelligence software and HD instruments provide increasingly accurate and real-time diagnosis. In the therapeutic approach, innovative techniques and devices are introduced to obtain the best therapeutic response by reducing the limitations and risks of the usual procedures. Innovation must always be aimed at ensuring better clinical outcomes.

Therefore, we are proposing a Special Issue entitled “Latest Advances and Clinical Applications of Endoscopic Technology” dedicated to the most recent research on endoscopic technology.

It is our pleasure to invite you to contribute this Special Issue with original contributions, systematic reviews and pilot studies on endoscopic technology and the most recent advances in endoscopy, such as in diagnostic upper and lower gastrointestinal endoscopy, endoscopic resection of neoplastic lesions, diagnostic and therapeutic endoscopic ultrasound (EUS), cholangioscopy and endoscopic retrograde cholangio-pancreatography (ERCP).

We look forward to receiving your contributions.
