Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Despite the advancements in diagnostic and therapeutic approaches over the past decades, coronary heart disease (CHD) remains the leading cause of morbidity and mortality worldwide. Current diagnosis and treatment emphasize the importance of a holistic approach that includes effective and timely preventive measures, early diagnosis preferably through non-invasive methods, the optimization of medical therapy based on current scientific evidence, and coronary revascularization through PCI or CABG where indicated. Emerging data regarding potential prognostic improvements in CHD are coming from new areas of intervention, such as precision medicine, minimally invasive procedures, stem cell therapy, and the clinical application of artificial intelligence.

We invite manuscripts regarding the latest information on coronary heart disease diagnosis, treatment and prognosis, including original clinical studies and reviews.
