Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

The COVID-19 pandemic has been a key point of research for all physicians and in particular intensivists since early 2020.....To this end, we would like to invite you to submit state-of-the-art reviews on COVID-19 in the ICU, as well as original research in this area for publication in this issue.

The special edition will be divided into four sections:

- The first one will focus on organ damage from SARS-COV2 infection, with reviews and original articles focusing on severe COVID-19 organ involvement.
- The second chapter will include articles on treatment of COVID-19 patients in intensive care and more specifically on respiratory support.
- The third section will be dedicated to nosocomial infections associated with COVID-19 (for example, COVID-19-associated aspergillosis and super-infections in ICU COVID-19 patients), exhibiting a series and state-of-the art articles.
- The last section will discuss what the pandemic has changed in the ICU for physicians and what has been learned from this historic period. The care of non-COVID-19 patients during surges will also be discussed.

We look forward greatly to your submissions.
