Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Glaucoma care has evolved tremendously in recent years. Advances in imaging techniques, a better understanding of aqueous humour dynamics or novel biomarkers are just a few examples. We can now tailor the diagnosis, progression monitoring and the medical and surgical treatment to the individual patient to a much greater extent than we were able to just a few years ago. Therefore, I am delighted to be the Guest Editor of this Special Issue on the topic of glaucoma management in the era of personalized medicine. Renowned experts in the field contribute an up-to-date review of their area of expertise. I am confident that this Special Issue will be of great value to clinicians as well as scientists as a go-to reference for up-to-date personalized glaucoma care.
