Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

It is nowadays clear to everyone how dentistry is constantly evolving due to the design and development of innovative materials and technologies related to new treatment concepts, created to obtain ever better and more performing clinical performances.

Specifically, the endodontic and restorative (conservative prosthetic) areas are those that can most benefit from the continuous introduction of new products and technologies, and this Special Issue aims to include innovative and original scientific research related to newly developed materials and technologies that can suggest ways to solve the problems of traditional dental care.

High-quality clinical studies, in vitro studies, literature reviews and particularly significant case reports will be considered for publication.

Deadline for manuscript
submissions:
