Dear Colleagues,

Since their discovery in 1990s by lijima, carbon nanotubes (CNT) have gained great interest within scientific community. Such sp2 carbon nanomaterials have been proposed for use in different technological fields, including engineering, materials chemistry, science. and nanomedicine. This Special Issue aims to be a platform for scientists working on exploring the CNT-related structures from both a fundamental and application point of views, sharing the new insights into the tailored functionalization procedures for conferring specific activities. Topics include, but are not restricted to, covalent and non-covalent functionalization routes with small molecules and/or macromolecules, development of instrumental and characterization techniques, functional innovative application opportunities, as well as the key advantages and limitation in long term use.
