Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Magnetic particles have been used in biological and medical applications since the early 1920s. More recently, there has been an explosion of innovative applications in this area, many with a focus on clinical translation. This Special Issue will focus on papers that explore both fundamental studies of magnetic micro- and nanoparticles for biomedicine, as well as research and clinical applications.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the premier open access journal dedicated to experimental organic chemistry, and now in its 25th year of publication, the papers published in Molecules span from classical synthetic methodology to natural product isolation and characterization, as well as physicochemical studies and the applications of these molecules as pharmaceuticals, catalysts and novel materials. Pushing the boundaries of the discipline, we invite papers on multidisciplinary topics bridging biochemistry, biophysics and materials science, as well as timely reviews and topical issues on cutting edge fields in all these areas.
