Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Non-small Cell Lung Cancer (NSCLC) treatments have progressed remarkably within the past decade. Mortality rates are now lower than incidence, suggesting that recent improvements in treatment strategies have significantly impacted overall survival.

As we progress towards the mid-2020s, it is fitting to commemorate the advancements in NSCLC treatment with a Special Issue of the journal Pharmaceuticals. We seek both reviews and original articles focusing on discovery of mutational targets (molecular testing), development of novel therapeutic strategies (immunotherapy and targeted), drug delivery and discovery. We also welcome articles covering other topics with the aim of improving or providing an alternative paradigm of NSCLC treatment.
