Aims & Scope

Sports is a peer-reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, research notes and short communications in the interdisciplinary area of sport sciences and public health. It links several scientific disciplines in an integrated fashion, to address critical issues related to sport science and public health.

The primary areas of research interests to sports include:

- anatomy
- biochemistry
- biomechanics
- clinical aspects of exercise
- ergonomics
- kinanthropometry
- management of sports injuries
- psychology
- sociology
- sports medicine and sciences
- sports nutrition
- other interdisciplinary perspectives

Therefore, this international journal covers a broad spectrum of important topics which are relevant to sport sciences and public health. It provides comprehensive and unique information with a worldwide readership. Emphasizing an holistic approach, the journal serves as a comprehensive and multi-disciplinary platform, addressing important issues. A large number of eminent professors and scientists from all over the world serve as editorial members and guest reviewers for the journal.

Open Access. What does it really mean?

Open access is mainly a response to what is known as the serials crisis: yearly increasing journal subscription prices, which make subscription-based journals increasingly difficult to afford. Many university libraries around the world have had to cancel existing subscriptions, or are unable to keep up with subscribing to new journals, because the cost of publication has risen disproportionately to their budgets.

With open access publishing, the cost of peer-review and production of an article is borne by the institute of the author by payment of a one-time flat fee. Conversely, readers and their institutes are no longer charged for accessing the journals they need.

For researchers, open access brings the convenience of immediate access to the literature that they need — no matter for which university or company they work, or whether they just want to read a paper in their spare time at home.

For authors, open access means a much wider circle of readers due to the easy access to their research papers. The interested general public is also able to access research works, giving higher transparency to the outcome of taxpayer money spent on research.

Publication Ethics Statement

Sports is a member of the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE). Sports takes the responsibility to enforce a rigorous peer-review together with strict ethical policies and standards to ensure to add high quality scientific works to the field of scholarly publications.
