This Special Issue is dedicated to exploring recent contributions of science and technology to adopting sustainable measures for energy and resource recovery as well as developing technologies for efficient use of finite natural resources. We will particularly welcome submissions on the following topics:

- Sustainable clean energy technologies from geoenery resources, including environmentally safe sustainable technologies for georesource recovery, for example, minerals, rare Earth elements, oil/gas, and geothermal energy;
- Emerging technologies for geoenery and georesource exploration and assessment;
- Analysis and modelling of geoenery production and georesource recovery and management;
- Initiatives towards the circular economy in the field of georesource utilization;
- Environmental, economic, and social concerns of geoenery and georesource recovery;
- Role of geoenery and georesource recovery in tackling climate change;
