

SUPPORTING INFORMATION

On the donor:acceptor features for poly(3-hexylthiophene):TiO₂ quantum dots hybrid materials obtained via water vapor flow assisted sol-gel growth

Dominique Mombrú, Mariano Romero*, Ricardo Faccio* and Álvaro W. Mombrú*.

Centro NanoMat & Área Física, Departamento de Experimentación y Teoría de la Estructura de la Materia y sus Aplicaciones (DETEMA), Facultad de Química, Universidad de la República, Montevideo C.P. 11800, Uruguay.

(*) corresponding authors:

Prof. Dr. Mariano Romero (mromero@fq.edu.uy)

Prof. Dr. Ricardo Faccio (rfaccio@fq.edu.uy)

Prof. Dr. Álvaro Mombrú (amombru@fq.edu.uy)

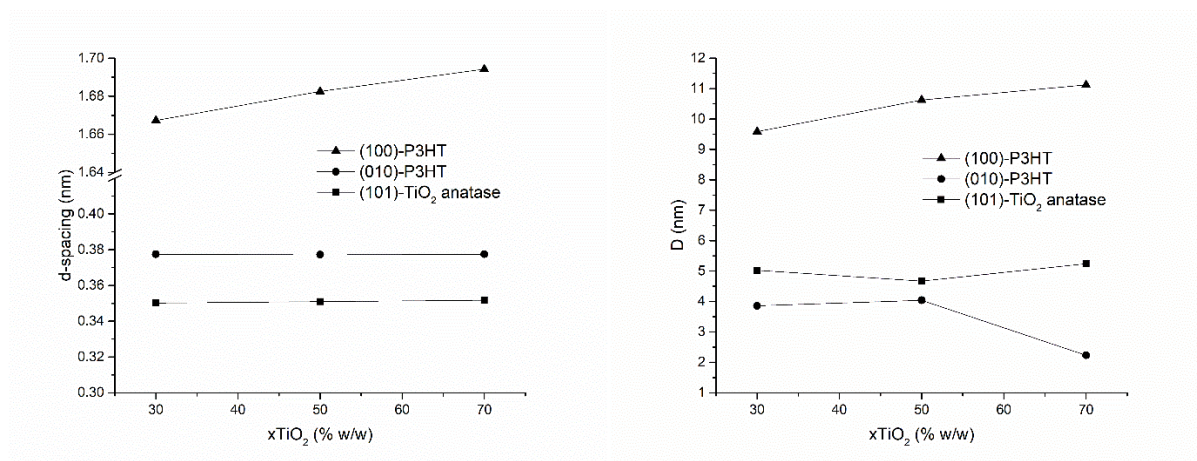

Figure S1. Selected d-spacing and mean crystalline size as a function of TiO_2 -QDs concentration.

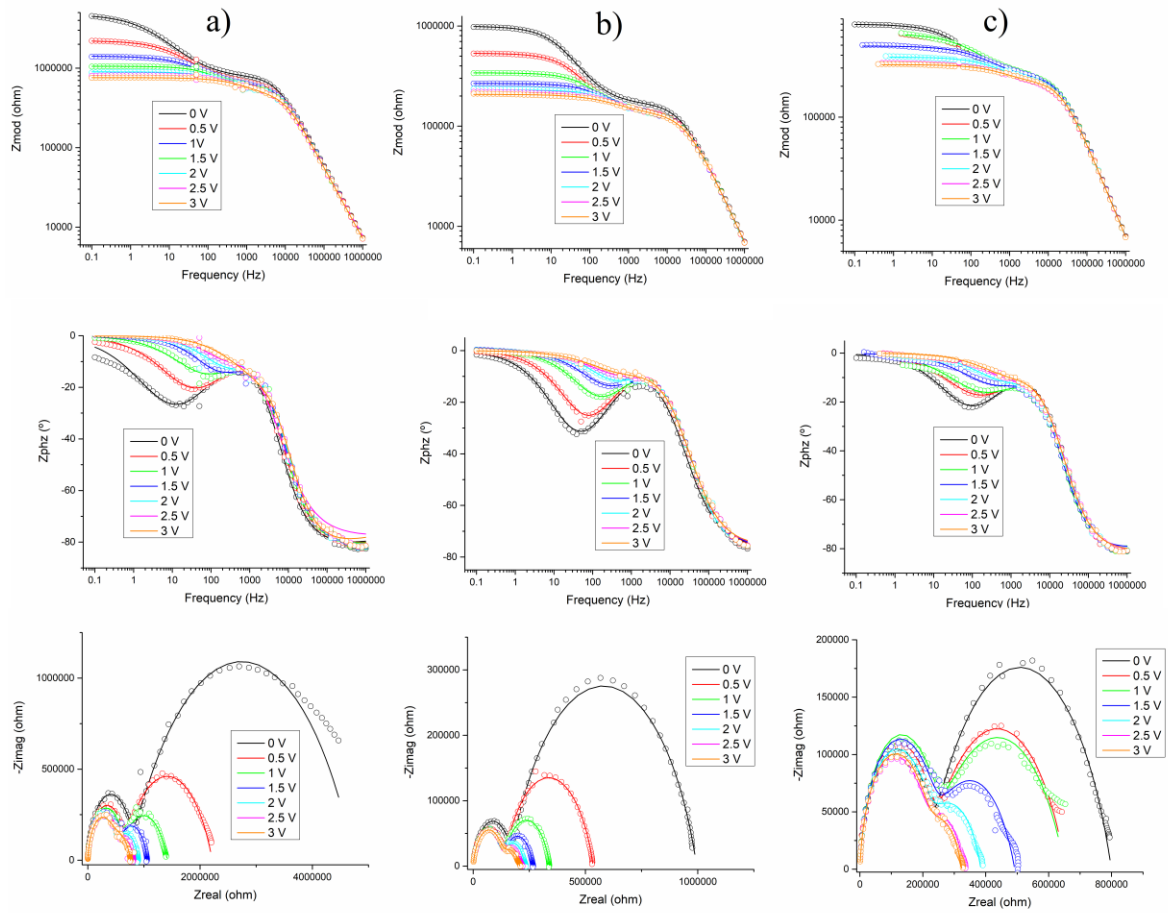

Figure S2. Impedance modulus (upper panel) and phase (middle panel) versus frequency, and Nyquist (lower panel) for a) x30, b) x50 and c) x70 at $V_{DC} = 0 - 3$ V.