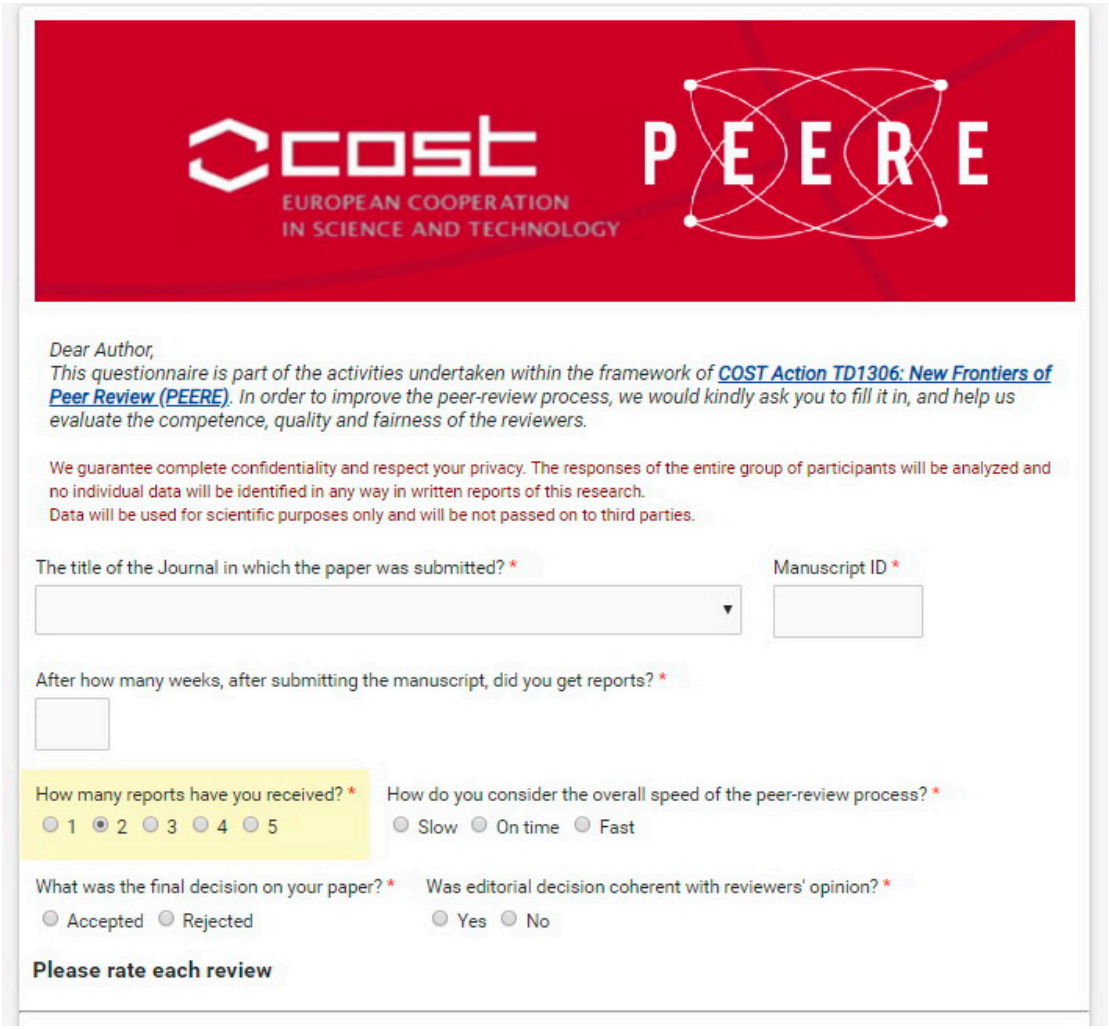
1. The Appearance of the On-Line Survey

Depending on the number of reviewers who reviewed the manuscript (marked in response to the question: How many reports you have received?) the corresponding number of identical questionnaires was opened, one for each reviewer. Here is an example of the questionnaire in the case when there were two reviewers per paper.



The appearance of the on-line survey – continuation

(If the answer on question: Did you have an impression that some non-scientific factor influenced the review and the final reviewer's suggestion? was YES, the author was able to choose a predefined factor or to add his/her own.)
