

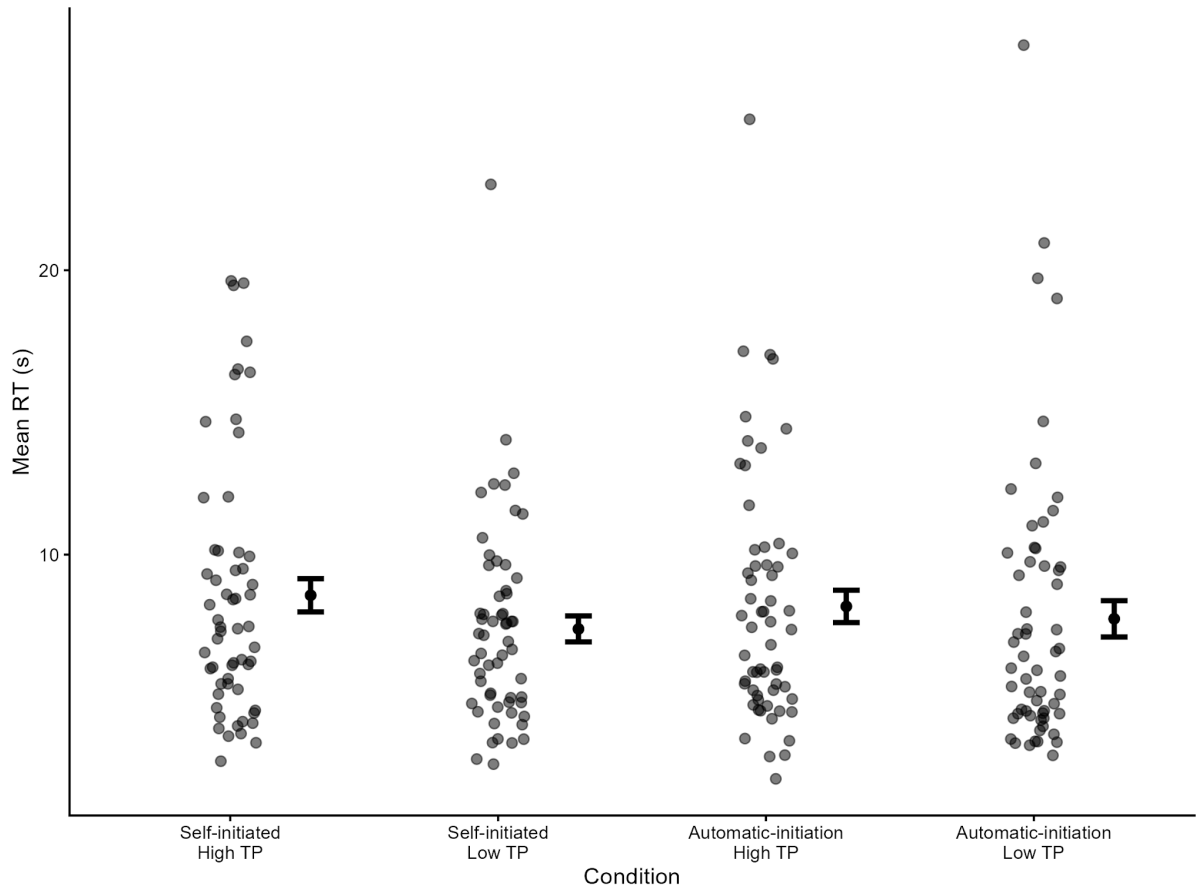

Figure S1. Mean response latency of correct answers (in seconds) by experimental condition, collapsed across modality. Grey points represent individual participants' mean response latency within each condition. Alongside the individual participant means, black points represent condition-level mean response latency, and error bars indicate ±1 standard error of the mean.