

Study on the Enhanced Shelf Lifetime of CYTOP-Encapsulated Organic Solar Cells: Supplementary Material

Jaehoon Kim ¹, Hyung-Jun Song ^{2,} and Changhee Lee ^{1,}

¹ Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, Seoul National University, Seoul 08826, Republic of Korea; jplane@snu.ac.kr (J.K.); chlee7@snu.ac.kr (C.L.)

² Department of Safety Engineering, Seoul National University of Science and Technology, Seoul, 01811, Republic of Korea; hj.song@seoultech.ac.kr (H.-J.S.)

* Correspondence: hj.song@seoultech.ac.kr (H.-J.S.); chlee7@snu.ac.kr (C.L.)

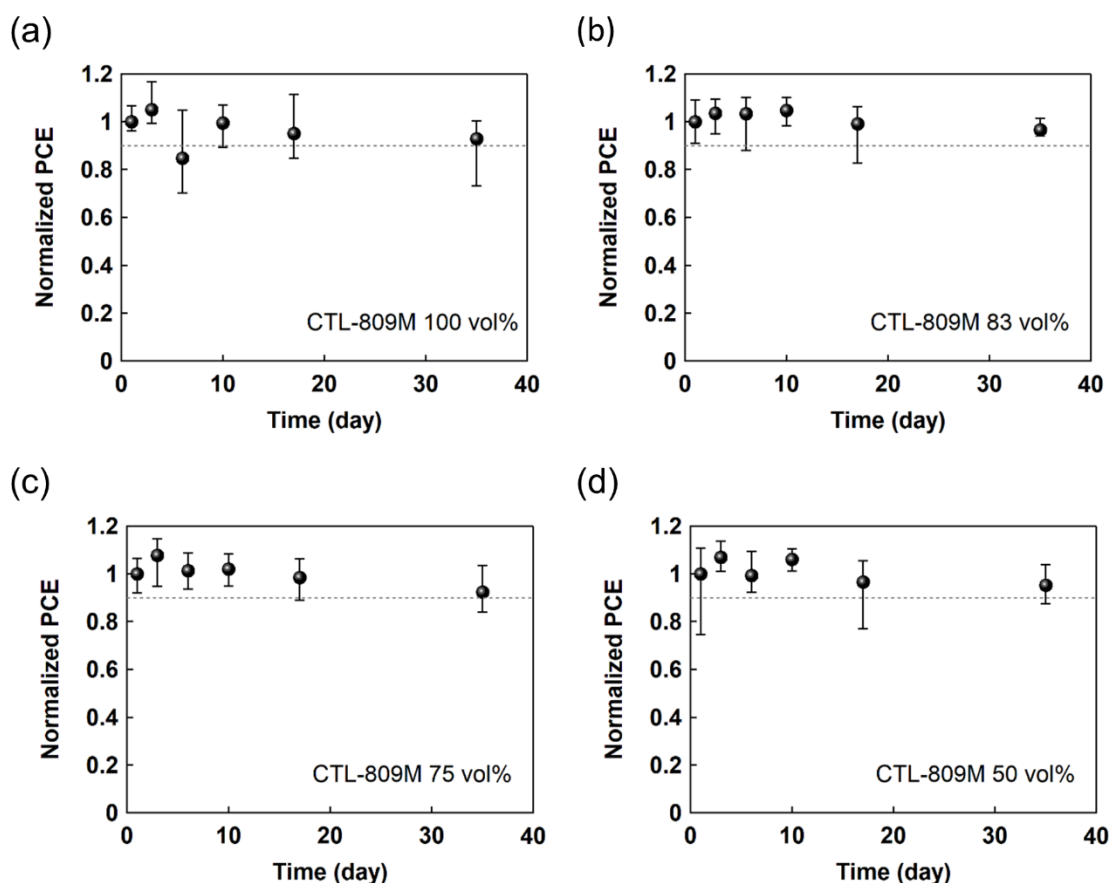

Figure S1. Normalized power conversion efficiency (PCE) of organic solar cells (OSCs) as a function of aging time depending on the CYTOP (CTL809M) volume concentration, where the gray dotted line indicates the points with a value of 0.9.