

Mountain biking in New Zealand's planted forests

Scion is investigating forest management implications from the presence of mountain biking activities in commercial plantation forests.

Forest managers are invited to participate and contribute their company policies, along with their own experience and perspectives with respect to the topic.

A large number of commercial planted exotic forests in New Zealand accommodate mountain biking (MB) activities on their lands.

Over the past 2 decades, an increasing number of our larger forests have allowed bike access, and in some cases, smaller forests have seen up to ten-fold increase in bike usage within a year where dedicated bike parks have been established.

The study seeks to clarify:

- the forest management policies and practices of commercial plantation forest managers regarding the access of the forest for mountain biking activities.
- risks and benefits from the presence of mountain biking activities within commercial forest estates.

We would like to know your views based on your experiences, and what you have recently noticed within your own forests.

Results of this survey will be summarised in a way that will provide anonymity to your identity and company affiliation you represent.

2. Please list any other commercial forested areas you own or manage that provide access for mountain biking not outlined above: _____

3. In the past 5 years, did you create new mountain biking trails and/or expand existing ones in your forests with mountain biking access?

- Yes No

If Yes, please list up to three (3) main reasons for expansion?

4. In the past 5 years has access for mountain biking been withdrawn from any of your forests?

- Yes No

If Yes, please list up to three (3) main reasons that mountain biking is no longer occurring in these forests:

Forest management policies

5. What is your company policy around recreational mountain biking within your estate?

Please send copies of any policies or permit forms you have, if these are an easier way for you to provide the relevant information to this question.

Engagement and partnerships

6. Does your company have engagement or partnership with any of the following organisations, to run events involving mountain biking in your forests? (Please tick all that apply)

11. What are the main risks to providing mountain biking within your forests?

12. Please comment on how you are mitigating for these risks:

Impacts from mountain biking activity

Please provide up to three reasons why you think the above trend would occur?

16. Over the past 10 years, what changes to forest management practices have you had to make as a result of accommodating mountain biking activity?

17. Are there any examples you would like to share of significant impacts (positive or negative) due to the presence of mountain biking in your forests?
