

Figure S1. The saturation curve of different ripening stages. The X axis represents the percent of mapped reads. The Y axis represents the percent of the genes of which FPKM deviates within 15% of the final value. Different color of the curves stands for the saturation curve of the genes in different expression levels.