

Figure S9 Differential gene MA map

Note: The vertical axis represents the log2FC value, representing the logarithmic value of the difference multiple (log2 Fold_Change); The horizontal axis represents the average gene expression level between the two samples; The red dots represent an upregulation of gene expression, the green dots represent a downregulation, and the blue dots indicate no significant difference in gene expression.