

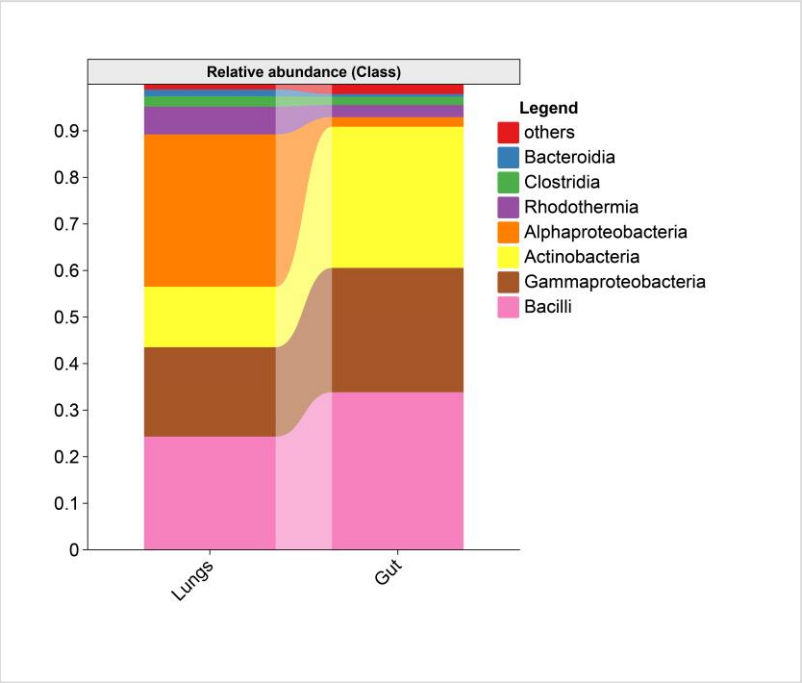

Figure S1. Bacterial classes Bacilli, Gammaproteobacteria, and Actinobacteria were more abundant in the guts; however, Alphaproteobacteria, Rhodothermia, and Bacteroidia were more abundant in the lungs.

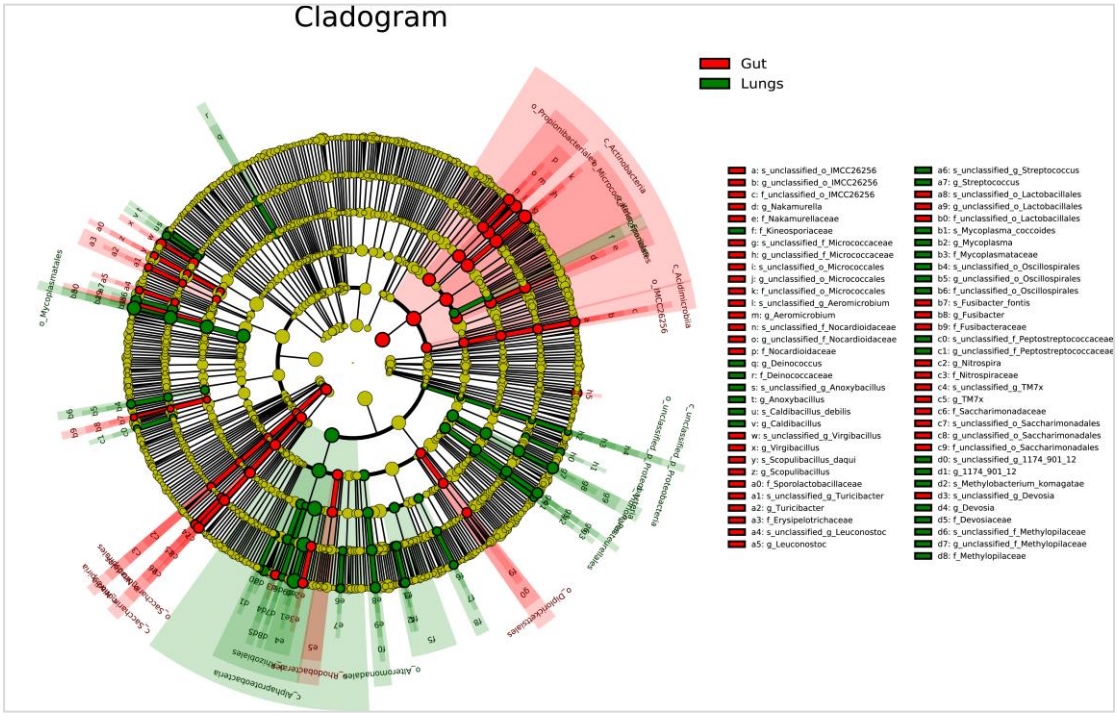

Figure S2. LEfSe cladogram results confirmed the microbial abundances and phylogenetic relationships of the detected taxa in the two anatomical sites.