real estate

MDPI

Supplementary Materials

A Data Analysis of the Relationship Between Life Quality Indicators and the Real Estate Market in Italian Provincial Capitals

Felicia Di Liddo [1], Paola Amoruso [2,*], Pierluigi Morano [1], Francesco Tajani [3] and Marco Locurcio [1]

[1] Department of Civil, Environmental, Land, Construction and Chemistry Engineering, Polytechnic University of Bari, Via Orabona 4, 70125 Bari, Italy; felicia.diliddo@poliba.it (F.D.L.); pierluigi.morano@poliba.it (P.M.); marco.locurcio@poliba.it (M.L.)

[2] Department of Engineering, LUM University "Giuseppe Degennaro", Strada Statale 100 km 18, Casamassima, 70010 Bari, Italy;

[3] Department of Architecture and Design, Sapienza University of Rome, Via Flaminia 359, 00196 Rome, Italy; francesco.tajani@uniroma1.it (F.T.)

* Correspondence: amoruso@lum.it

Figure S1. Comparison between the indicators (SPE, OCC, CRI, MIG, ECO and ACC) and real estate variables (QUO and IMI) detected for North-West Italy cluster.

Figure S2. Comparison between the indicators (SPE, OCC, CRI, MIG, ECO and ACC) and real estate variables (QUO and IMI) detected for North-East Italy cluster.

Figure S3. Comparison between the indicators (SPE, OCC, CRI, MIG, ECO and ACC) and real estate variables (QUO and IMI) detected for Central Italy cluster.

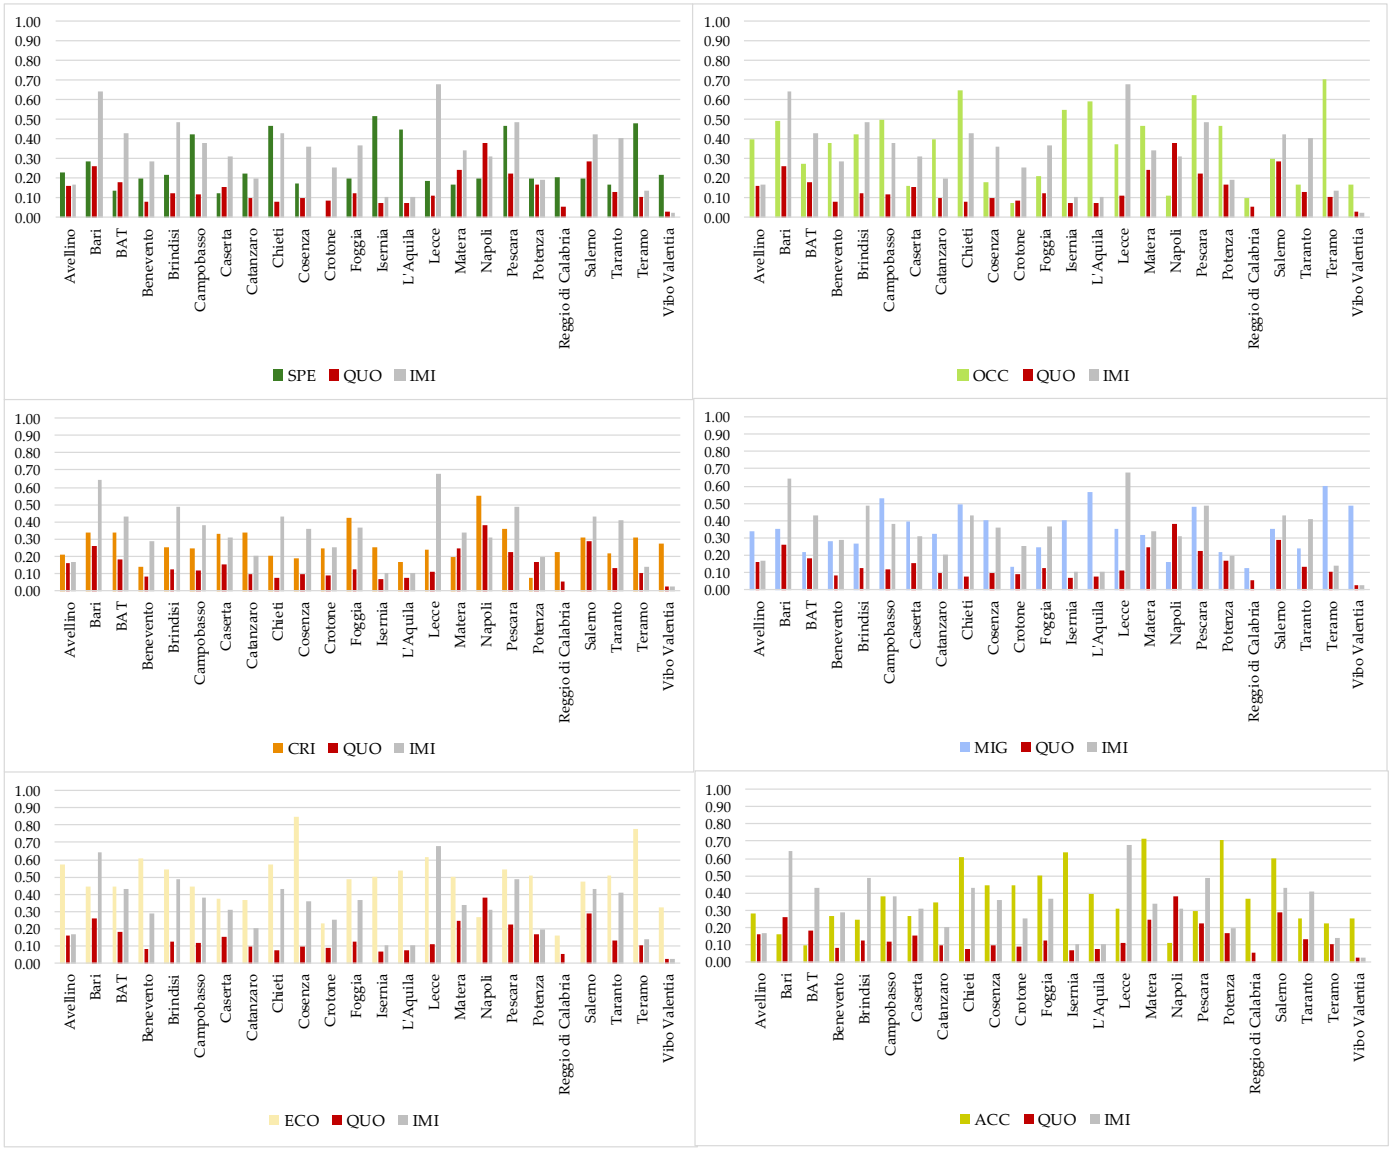

Figure S4. Comparison between the indicators (SPE, OCC, CRI, MIG, ECO and ACC) and real estate variables (QUO and IMI) detected for Southern Italy cluster.

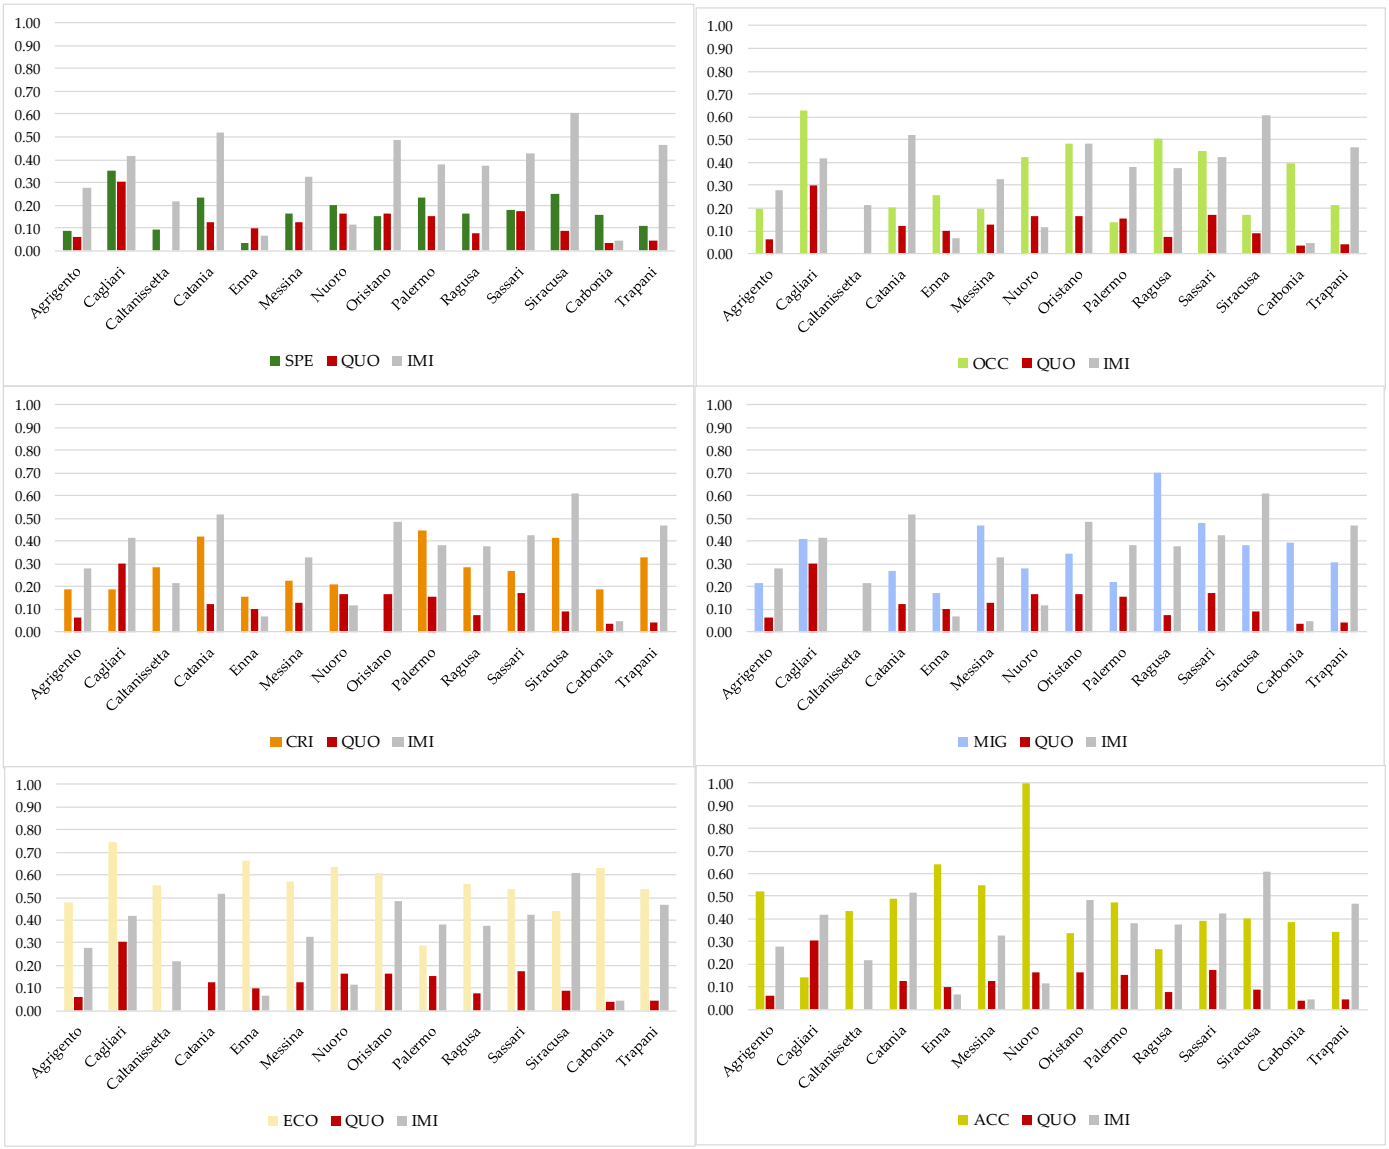

Figure S5. Comparison between the indicators (SPE, OCC, CRI, MIG, ECO and ACC) and real estate variables (QUO and IMI) detected for Islands cluster.