

Supplementary material

Impact of Depuration Plants on Nutrients Levels in North Adriatic Sea

Matteo Fanelli ¹, Federico Girolametti ^{1,}, Cristina Truzzi ¹, Silvia Illuminati ^{1,}, Behixhe Ajdini ¹, Sabina Susmel ², Mauro Celussi ³, Jadranka Šangulin ⁴ and Anna Annibaldi ¹

¹ Department of Life and Environmental Sciences, Università Politecnica delle Marche, Via Brecce Bianche, 60131 Ancona, Italy; m.fanelli@pm.univpm.it; f.girolametti@pm.univpm.it; b.ajdini@pm.univpm.it; c.truzzi@univpm.it; s.illuminati@univpm.it; a.annibaldi@univpm.it

² Department of Agricultural, Food, Environmental and Animal Sciences (Di4A), University of Udine, Via Sondrio 2/A, 33100 Udine, Italy; sabina.susmel@uniud.it

³ National Institute of Oceanography and Applied Geophysics - OGS, Oceanography Division, via A. Piccard, 54; I-34151 Trieste, Italy; mcelussi@inogs.it

⁴ Department of Health Ecology, Institute of Public Health, Kolovare 2, Zadar, Croatia; jsangulin@zjz-zadar.hr

* Correspondence: F.G., e-mail: f.girolametti@pm.univpm.it; Tel.: +39 0712204302; S.I., e-mail: s.illuminati@univpm.it; Tel.: +39 0714981

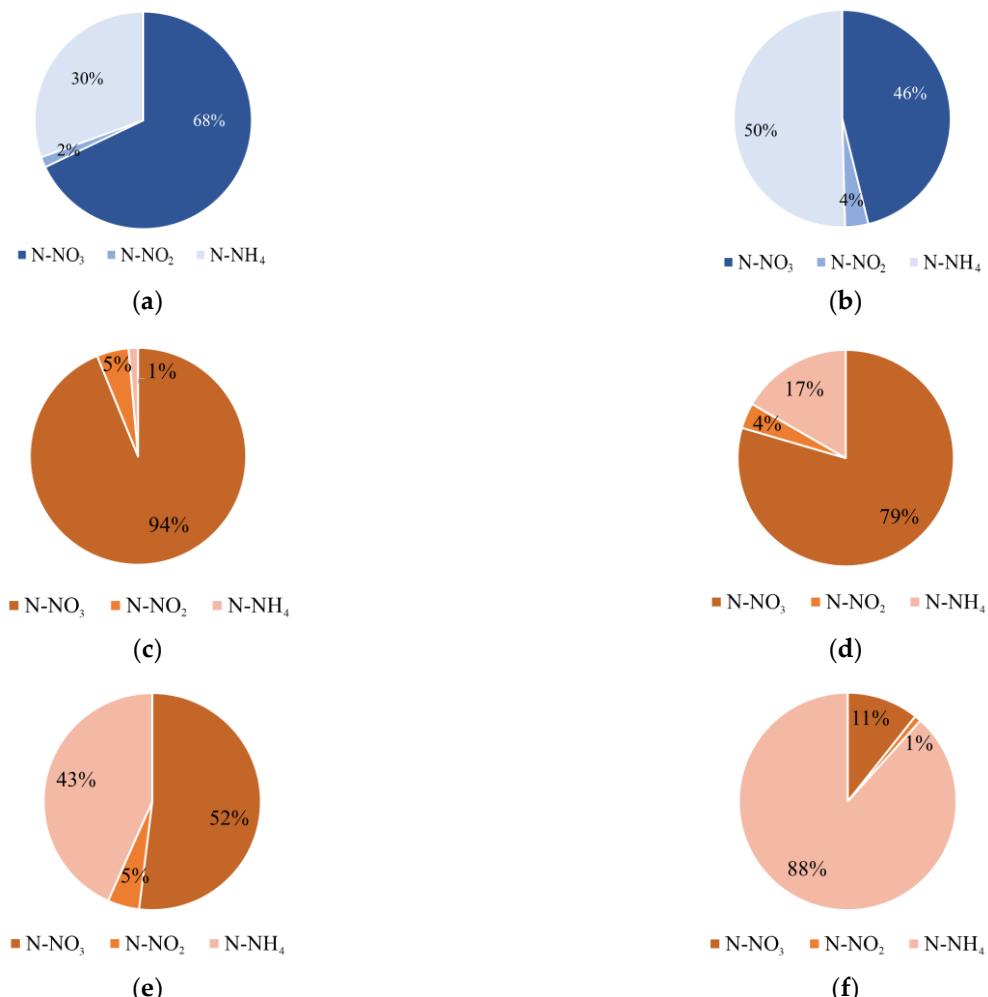

Figure S1. Dissolved Inorganic Nitrogen distribution: Sea average 2019 (a); Sea average 2020 (b); Lignano DP 2019; (c) Lignano DP 2020; (d) San Giorgio DP 2019; (e) San Giorgio DP 2020 (f).