

Special Issue

Entrepreneurship for Economic Growth

Message from the Guest Editor

Entrepreneurs are crucial to market economies because they may drive the nation's economic expansion. They encourage new employment by developing new goods and services, which eventually accelerates economic growth. Therefore, public policy that promotes entrepreneurship should be seen as crucial for economic progress. This Special Issue aims to broadcast recent empirical and theoretical research regarding the dynamics in entrepreneurship and economic growth that can guide policymakers in making appropriate policies. These might include (but is not limited to) the following topics:

- Economic policies and SMEs regulation;
- Economic growth via SME growth;
- Entrepreneurial and managerial approaches;
- Entrepreneurial finance;
- Entrepreneurial/co-founder teams;
- Internal and external drivers for entrepreneurial innovation;
- Inhibitors and risks of entrepreneurial mindset;
- Economics of entrepreneurship;
- Social entrepreneurship

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.
