

Special Issue

Moving from Entrepreneurial Intention to Behavior

Message from the Guest Editors

In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- Psychological Drivers: Examining the mindset, motivations, and cognitive processes that propel entrepreneurs from planning to execution.
- Sociological and Cultural Influences: How social norms, cultural backgrounds, and societal expectations shape entrepreneurial behavior.
- Impact of External Factors: The role of economic conditions, technological advancements, policy frameworks, and market dynamics.
- Comparative Studies: Insights from different geographic regions and entrepreneurial ecosystems.
- Methodological Innovations: New approaches to study and predict the transition from entrepreneurial intention to behavior.

Manuscripts should be original, unpublished, and not currently under review by other journals. Submissions should adhere to the guidelines of the Administrative Sciences journal. Manuscripts must be submitted through the journal's online submission system, indicating the Special Issue title. We eagerly anticipate your contributions to this vital field of research. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.
