Evaluating the Impacts of New Forms of Leadership on Workers and Organizations: Is Leadership a “More than Meets the Eye” Subject?

Message from the Guest Editors

The Special Issue we are proposing here is intended to discuss in what way can new forms of leadership present valid solutions towards problems that organizations are facing in the current economic scenario. We are thus seeking submissions that focus on the impacts of these new leadership approaches over the employee–organization relation to clarify if existing knowledge over leadership is still in a state of a “more than meets the eye” subject. Relevant theoretical perspectives might include (but are not limited to):

- innovative leadership;
- sustainable leadership;
- responsible leadership;
- virtuous leadership;
- inclusive leadership;
- leadership and corporate social responsibility;
- diversity and leadership;
- leadership and changing work environments;
- leadership and internal communication;
- LMX;
- ethical leadership;
- transformational leadership.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.
