

Special Issue

Entrepreneurship in Emerging Markets: Opportunities and Challenges

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue is to explore how entrepreneurs identify and exploit opportunities in emerging markets and how contextual factors shape their behavior, performance, and impact. This Special Issue aligns closely with Administrative Sciences' mission to disseminate high-quality research that advances the fields of economics, management, and social sciences and foster dialog between academia, industry, and policymakers. In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Entrepreneurial ecosystems and innovation in emerging markets;
- Access to finance, venture capital, and microfinance;
- Digital transformation and technology-based entrepreneurship;
- Social and sustainable entrepreneurship;
- Gender, diversity, and inclusivity in entrepreneurship;
- Institutional frameworks, governance, and policy support;
- Comparative studies between emerging and developed economies.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.

Editor-in-Chief
