E-administration—Its Use and Spread

Message from the Guest Editor

In today's world, e-administration, also called electronic administration, is starting to become widespread. E-administration refers to any number of mechanisms which transform organizations from paper processing to electronic processing. Qualitative and quantitative empirical research studies are desired in this Special Issue. We would like to welcome papers that will show the impact of various factors (social, economic, managerial, technical) on e-administration use and spread.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.
