Leadership and Employees' Performance on the Verge of a New Era: The Challenges Brought by COVID-19 on Workplaces

Message from the Guest Editors

The current worldwide scenario for people management is full of challenges and uncertainties. As a result of the SARS-CoV-2 public health pandemic, the forms of work organization have changed dramatically and at breakneck speed. Under the threat of the disruption of national health services, successive restrictions were witnessed across the world in general, with governments seeking a balance between public health and operability in national economies. Within the framework of government decisions aimed at protecting public health, people-management measures, restrictions on movement and individual freedoms stand out, which materialized a new reality that is felt at the personal, family and professional levels...

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.
