Leadership in the Public Sector: From an International Perspective

Message from the Guest Editor

The core theme for this Special Issue is: "The Quality of Leadership in Public Administration and Governance Really Matters". As a topic, it has many dimensions and issues. For example, how do leaders in public administration and governance create support for the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals and mobilise whole-of-government and whole-of-society efforts to deliver them? What do leaders do in order to create and sustain effective government and/or public sector organisations? Please send us your paper addressing the topic of this Special Issue. We are especially interested in papers written from a social science perspective and which contain empirical data and theoretical models. We are also especially interested in papers that use a comparative design and papers that consider the practical application of theoretical conclusions. Manuscripts should be submitted online at www.mdpi.com by registering and logging in to this website. Accepted papers will be published continuously in the journal (as soon as accepted) and will be listed together on the special issue website.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.
