Responsible Leadership at the Crossroads: Integrating Theory and Practice

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue on “Responsible Leadership at the Crossroads: Integrating Theory and Practice” explores leadership responsibly amid uncertainty and competing demands. Contributions may include theoretical advances and practical examples, highlighting the need to embed responsible leadership in daily decisions, organizational cultures, and responses to ethical dilemmas and stakeholder expectations. The major themes of this Special Issue include (1) ethical decision-making and accountability; (2) sustainable leadership practices; (3) cultivating responsible leadership within organizational culture; and (4) policy and public-sector implications. By integrating theory and practice, this collection highlights responsible leadership as both a moral compass and a practical tool for navigating complex organizational and societal challenges.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.
