Knowledge Intensive Organizations and Their Role in Promoting Sustainable Development

Message from the Guest Editors

The COVID-19 pandemic constitutes an unprecedented challenge with very severe socioeconomic consequences. In the span of just a few weeks, the way we work, communicate, and live our daily life has drastically changed. In this context, many organizations have had to lower the blinds and close their doors. Notwithstanding, knowledge-intensive organizations (KIOs) have showcased their ability to readapt. While in the previous economic crisis, KIOs were seriously damaged and suffered significant cuts in their budgets (e.g., hospitals, universities, research centers, etc.), they are now deemed as fundamental in order to ensure the survival of our model of life and envisage creative opportunities to recover from this situation...

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.
