

Special Issue

Self-Leadership

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of the proposed Special Issue is to deeply investigate existing and/or new topics related to self-leadership in either a conceptual or empirical manner. Research directions to be followed include but are not limited to:

- What is the relationship between self-leadership and entrepreneurial success?
- Does the ability to self-lead one's self impact her ability to communicate to others within an organization and vice versa?
- What is the state of the art in terms of self-leadership measurement?
- What has been researched in terms of self-leadership theory in the past and what are future directions for the study of self-leadership?
- What are the international aspects of the study of self-leadership? Do different cultures self-lead themselves differently?
- Do emotions impact one's ability to self-lead themselves?
- What are the organizational/environmental conditions that enhance/impede successful self-leadership within organizations?
- Does one's fitness/health level relate to one's ability to effectively self-lead themselves?

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to Administrative Sciences, the journal aims to advance and communicate knowledge concerning management theory and practice both in public administration and in profit organizations; it encourages submissions that build on interdisciplinary research in related fields, such as business, economics, political science, gender studies, psychology, sociology, physiology, communication theory or artificial intelligence and their implications on management, organizations and the society. Join us on a journey through the Administrative Sciences, where management merges with innovation.

Editor-in-Chief
