15th EASN International Conference on Innovation in Aviation & Space Towards Sustainability Today and Tomorrow

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue is cooperating with the 15th EASN International Conference on “Innovation in Aviation & Space towards Sustainability Today and Tomorrow”, which will be held by the EASN Association and the Universidad Politécnica de Madrid (UPM), and will take place in Madrid, Spain, from the October 14th to 17th, 2025.

The EASN Conference Series has become a leading platform for fostering dialogue and collaboration among key stakeholders in aviation and space, including representatives from academia, industry, research organizations, and policymaking bodies. Through plenary talks, thematic sessions, and interactive discussions, participants will explore groundbreaking advancements and innovative approaches to address today’s and tomorrow’s sustainability challenges.

We are looking forward to welcoming you to Madrid and the 2025 EASN International Conference, and invite submissions of extended conference papers to this Special Issue. We hope that the conference will be another successful, in-person gathering of the EASN Association.
