It Runs in the Family: The Importance of the Lamiaceae Family Species—2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editor

The aim of this Special Issue is to collect state-of-the-art research on species from the Lamiaceae family to provide new insights into the importance and unique properties of these plants. All recent advances in the introduction of native (or new) species to cultivation schemes, new cultivation techniques (such as hydroponics or substrates), new applications and uses (edible flowers, urban uses, postharvest management, etc.), and innovative and improved methods of determining biological properties will also be covered in this Special Issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Agronomy draws together researchers from diverse areas of agricultural research with a common aim of enhancing agricultural productivity globally. The journal provides unlimited free access to all those interested in advancing agricultural science from both the research and general community. Papers are released immediately after acceptance through the internet.

Agronomy is supported by our authors and their institutes through low article processing charges (APC) for accepted papers. We hope you will support the journal by becoming one of our authors.
