SOD-1 and Antioxidant Role in Cellular Pathophysiology

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite you to submit your latest research findings or a review article to this Special Issue, which will bring together current research concerning SOD-1 involvement in both physiological processes as well as diseased states. This research can include both in vitro and in vivo studies relating to any of the following topics: structure/function of SOD-1; regulation of SOD-1 production, intracellular localization, and extracellular export; posttranslational modifications of SOD-1; the role of SOD-1 in cell signaling, cell metabolism, cell cycle regulation, epigenetic pathway modulation, cellular stress managing, and disease pathogenesis.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

It has been recognized in medical sciences that in order to prevent adverse effects of “oxidative stress” a balance exists between prooxidants and antioxidants in living systems. Imbalances are found in a variety of diseases and chronic health situations. Our journal Antioxidants serves as an authoritative source of information on current topics of research in the area of oxidative stress and antioxidant defense systems. The future is bright for antioxidant research and since 2012, Antioxidants has become a key forum for researchers to bring their findings to the forefront.
