

Special Issue

Industrial Safety and Occupational Health Engineering

Message from the Guest Editor

We are inviting submissions to the Special Issue on Industrial Safety and Occupational Health Engineering. Industrial Safety and Occupational Health are central issues in current research on safety production, spanning industries such as mining, metallurgy, petrochemicals, construction, and transportation. The Special Issue focuses on academic exchanges in areas such as ventilation and dust prevention, fire and heat hazard prevention, occupational hazards prevention, industrial waste disposal, safety information and intelligence, risk assessment, and emergency management. It aims to enhance the level and capacity of safety production by addressing these factors of occupational hazards, environmental hazards and accident risk in production activities. In this Special Issue, we invite submissions exploring cutting-edge research and recent advances in Industrial Safety and Occupational Health Engineering. Both theoretical and experimental studies and comprehensive reviews and survey papers are welcome.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
