Special Issue

Stay Healthy: Current Perspectives on Muscle and Bone

Message from the Guest Editor

We are pleased to announce a request for contributions to our Special Issue of Applied Sciences, entitled: Stay Healthy: Current Perspectives on Muscle and Bone. A list of potential topics of consideration is suggested for manuscript publications; however, we welcome other original topics similar in scope, which may fit the context of this issue and be of interest to researchers, clinicians, and the general readership. Proposed areas of consideration include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Osteoporosis;
- Sarcopenia;
- Diagnostics;
- Aging;
- Bone and muscle targeted therapies;
- Nephrology-associated effects on bone and muscle;
- Exercise effects on bone and muscle;
- Current clinical perspectives on bone health;
- Relationship between bone and muscle pain;
- Defects in mineralization;
- Advances in improving pediatric musculoskeletal deficiencies.

I appreciate your consideration and look forward to your contribution to Applied Sciences. We look forward to working with you. Regards,

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
