

Special Issue

Nuclear Materials: Alloy Design, Processing, Microstructure, Properties, and Qualification

Message from the Guest Editors

We are excited to announce a Special Issue of Applied Sciences dedicated to Nuclear Materials, focusing on critical advances in alloy design, processing, microstructural characterization, properties, and the qualification of structural materials for nuclear applications. This Special Issue seeks to provide a platform for the latest research that pushes the boundaries of knowledge and innovation in the field of nuclear materials. We invite submissions of original research articles, review papers, and case studies that focus on (but not limited to) the following areas:

- Alloy Design
- Processing Techniques
- Microstructure
- Material Properties
- Modeling and simulation
- Testing and Qualification
- Applications

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
