Focus on Oral Problems of the Elderly

Message from the Guest Editors

We are inviting submission to this Special Issue on the “Focus on Oral Problems of the Elderly” in various dental research fields.

Older people are at higher risk of infectious, chronic multi-factorial and neoplastic diseases, both primarily and secondarily involving soft and hard tissues of the mouth and putatively relying on systemic inflammation, immune-microbiome unbalance, and genetics. A deeper insight into the etio-pathogenic pathways underlying oral and periodontal diseases in elderly and oral manifestations of age-related systemic disorders may improve their early detection and inter-disciplinary management, positively affecting oral and general health, oral health-related quality of life, morbidities, and healthcare costs.

Particularly welcome will be studies, from basic to clinical research, and reviews that in all dentistry fields would improve knowledge about prevention and treatment of oral diseases and conditions of the elderly, aiming to achieve a good quality of life also reducing morbidities.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
