

Special Issue

New and Old Environmental Impacts on Population Well Being

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue will be devoted to these “new” and “old” environmental impacts, aiming to collect original research related to the effect of environmental noise and low-frequency noise, regarding policy adjustments, health and annoyance indicators, measurement techniques, evaluation methodologies and mitigation measures and strategies. Topics of interest (among others) include:

- Methods for assessing the impact/discomfort of low-frequency noise
- Health impacts due to low-frequency noise
- Sources of low-frequency noise in urban areas
- Sound exposure to outdoor events in urban areas
- Impacts of noise on active mode users (walking and cycling)
- Methods and practices to mitigate environmental and low-frequency noise

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
