Special Issue

Overexploitation and Restoration of Natural Resources

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to collect the most relevant advances and interesting insights on the theme of Overexploitation and Restoration of Natural Resources both from a managerial and technological perspective, including topics such as:

- the application of digital technologies as Artificial Intelligence, Visual computing, Big Data Analytics enabling innovative ways to limit depletion or even enhance restoration of natural resources;
- the development of techniques, tools and practices in sectors such as tourism to design nature-based offerings that take into account the synergies between improving competitiveness and sustainable exploitation of natural resources;
- the role of industrial actors – companies and supply chains – and policy makers in spreading awareness, promoting specific innovations and sustaining specific programmes for restoration of natural resources.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
