Recent Developments in Electrochemical Sensors and Biosensors for Applications to Agri-Food, Environmental, and Biomedical Analysis

Message from the Guest Editors

Electrochemistry has been the basis of a raft of analytical techniques for over 100 years. Originally macro in scope and laboratory based, electroanalysis has evolved to encompass sensing systems—often micro—for a wide variety of applications; these include agri-food, environmental, and biomedical areas. Increasingly, sensors and biosensors incorporate modern innovations, such as telemetry, onboard processing, and intelligent materials. This Special Issue will celebrate electroanalysis by publishing high-quality, original contributions in these application areas.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
