

Special Issue

Feature Review Papers in Materials Science and Engineering

Message from the Guest Editors

Materials science and engineering is a cross-disciplinary subject that focuses on how materials behave and how their structure controls their behavior. Deeper knowledge into the relationships between fundamental science and different groups of materials (e.g., ceramics, composites, metals, and polymers) can be engineered to achieve better performance. The focus of this Special Issue is placed on Feature Review Papers in Materials Science and Engineering. Therefore, we aim to collect comprehensive reviews relating to this area. This Special Issue aims to improve the international exchange of scientific knowledge in materials science and technology, encompassing metallic materials; ceramics and glasses; composites; and polymers. Contributions that focus on emergent materials as well as research on nanomaterials and biomaterials are particularly welcome. In view of your outstanding research in this field, we are pleased to invite you to contribute to this Special Issue and submit your excellent work. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
