After the Global Turn: Current Colonial, Decolonial and Postcolonial Perspectives in Architecture

Message from the Guest Editor

What is the status of postcolonial and decolonial discourse in architecture? How has the “global turn” in architectural discourse evolved from histories of contact, conquest and colonization? This Special Issue aims to explore the field’s development from colonial, decolonial and postcolonial theory to the global turn and beyond. We encourage papers that take innovative approaches to the colonial, postcolonial, decolonial and global in architecture, including such topics as:

- Transnational connections and flows in excess of political boundaries;
- Decentered models of global architecture;
- Race and architecture;
- Feminist, subaltern and minor perspectives on architecture,
- Empire and decolonization;
- Migration;
- Indigenous architecture;
- Informal architecture;
- Landscapes of extraction and dispossession;
- Modernization and development;
- Other perspectives
