

Special Issue

Resilience and Sustainability in Architecture and Urban Planning: Policies, Practices, Strategies and Visions, 2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editors

The production and development of the built environment relates strongly to the fields of architecture and urban planning. The built environment experiences severe impacts from disasters: these have become both more frequent and intense around the world due to climate change and other human actions such as urbanization, requiring research on architectural design and urban planning that contributes to resilience. On the other hand, the built environment itself causes environmental impacts through the consumption of energy, land-use change, and pressure on ecosystems, among a variety of other factors. This Special Issue serves as a platform to assemble recent and innovative research findings relating to resilience and sustainability in the fields of architecture and urban planning, and, through being open access, can disseminate this knowledge widely at a time when the world is facing critical challenges posed by disasters, climate change, and environmental transformation.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The journal Architecture is an outstanding platform for new ideas and for reporting the outcomes of your research. The subjects sought are wide ranging and include design strategies, form, and technology. The need to be innovative in a rapidly changing profession and building environment make this journal the ideal place to publish. We are open to creativity and out-of-the-box thinking.
