Message from the Collection Editor

This topical collection is in collaboration with the IEREK International Conference on the Conservation of Architectural Heritage and aims to serve as a platform to assemble recent and innovative research findings and draw attention to different approaches related to the field of adaptive reuse and architectural conservation. Through an open-access mode, the Topical Collection intends to continuously disseminate this knowledge widely at a time when the heritage context is facing critical challenges posed by urbanisation and the need for economic development. The discussion in this Topical Collection intends to cover diverse types of historic and modern heritage and to focus on (but is not limited to) the following thematic areas:

- Conservation, adaptive reuse and creative placemaking;
- The role of conservation and adaptive reuse in climate adaptation;
- Post-conflict heritage regeneration;
- Memorization through heritage conservation and adaptive reuse;
- Heritage conservation and adaptive reuse as a peace making strategy;
- The contribution of new technologies (e.g., HBIM);
- Adaptive reuse of urban/architectural military and industrial heritage;
