Beverage Packaging 2019

Message from the Guest Editors

Beverage packaging uses several types of materials and components, including rigid and flexible plastics, paper and board, rigid metal, glass, closures, and labels. A variety of packaging types, such as bottles, cans, pouches, and cartons, are available, and this market is expected to continue growing. We sincerely invite high-quality original research and review papers on both experimental and theoretical works addressing this topic: Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Beverage packaging materials
- Filling technology
- Active and/or intelligent packaging concepts
- Beverage packaging sustainability
- Biopolymers for beverage packaging
- Recycling of beverage packaging
- Sensory properties of packed beverages
- Food law compliance testing
- Improved shelf-life of packed beverages
- Industry 4.0 in beverage packaging operations
- Beverage packaging process technology and process design
