Dairy Beverages: New Trends and Concepts

Message from the Guest Editor

Health, nutrition, new taste options and convenience are hot industry trends right now. Dairy drinks are ideal for adding value in terms of nutrition, wellness and functional additives. It the potential for innovation in dairy beverages category is real, with new product development offering opportunities for meal substitution and on-the-go consumption. The challenge is to stablish the systems that can meet the demand for healthy dairy drinks, while delivering the high quality, safety, stability during storage and transportation, texture and mouthfeel that consumers expect. This Special Issue comprises a wide range of articles serving to highlight new existing work conducted in the field of dairy beverages.
