Stem Cell Therapy for Cerebrovascular Disease

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue focuses on the most recent advances in stem cell therapy for cerebrovascular disease. Of special interest are manuscripts (both original articles and reviews) addressing topics include but not limited to:

- Mechanism of action of stem cell in cerebrovascular disease.
- Approaches for the preparation of adequate number and high quality of stem cell for transplantation.
- Novel 3D bioprocessing techniques that facilitate the clinical translation of stem cell therapy.
- Novel bioengineered cell-free stem cells mimics for cerebrovascular disease recovery.
- Novel biomaterials that facilitates stem cell therapy.
- In vitro 3D organ models that advances stem cell therapy.
