Editorial Board Members' Collection Series: Stem Cells and Stem Niches: Homeostasis, Repair and Regeneration

Message from the Guest Editor

In this Special Issue, “Stem Cells and Stem Niches: Homeostasis, Repair and Regeneration”, we welcome original research articles and reviews on this topic to highlight the molecular mechanisms underlying stem cell maintenance, directional differentiation and related disorders, with the aim of improving human health. Research areas include (but are not limited to): basic and applied research on stem cells (embryonic and/or adult stem cells), stem cell-conditioned medium and stem cell exosomes; stem cell interactions with their autocrine, paracrine and endocrine niches at different levels (cell, tissue and organ); and the application of stem cells and stem cell products to treat different diseases in animal models and in clinics. We look forward to receiving your contributions. Prof. Dr. Chunyi Li

About the Journal

Message from the Editorial Board

A major strength of biological science is the diversity of approaches that biological scientists apply to their research problems. Biology reflects this diversity and brings together studies employing the varied experimental and theoretical approaches that are fueling biological discovery. Biology, the journal, is a fully peer-reviewed publication with a rapid and economical route to open access publication and is listed on PubMed. All articles are peer-reviewed and the editorial focus is on determining that the work is scientifically sound rather than trying to predict its future impact.
